ULSTER COAL DEALERS PLAN WAY TO MEET FUEL SHORTAGE

Pledge Cooperation With State Fuel Administrator—Decide on Fair Distribution, No Hoarding or Profiteering—Ask Consumers' Help—Officers Elected.

The Ulster County Retail Coal Dealers' Association held a meeting Thursday noon at the West Shore Hotel to discuss ways and means of meeting the fuel shortage that is confronting the public at the present time.

The members present expressed their approval of the steps taken by Governor Miller to avert the threatened shortage of coal and to prevent hoarding and profiteering when the coal does begin to be mined. It was the consensus of opinion that a fair distribution of the coal which might be received would go a long way toward relieving the situation in Ulster county. The discussion which took place at the meeting further brought out the fact that the consumer can be of great assistance during this period by not burning any more coal than is absolutely necessary and by not ordering any more coal from the dealer than is necessary for his immediate use. It is intended in the anthracite fields is resumed promptly the dealers assure the public that, with their cooperation, they will do all they can to prevent hoarding.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:

COAL OPERATORS TO SURRENDER

That Result Expected From Policy Committee Meeting Saturday—Lewis to be "Lenient" Because Miners Have Not Been Evicted.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Philadelphia, Sept. 1.—Termination of the five months' strike in the anthracite fields is expected as the result of a meeting of the hard coal operators' general policies committee, scheduled for tomorrow. The solid front which the operators have maintained, is reported to be rapidly crumbling after the virtual surrender of the operators' demand for arbitration to the wage scale and working conditions after April 1, 1923.

As the situation stands today, according to one of the spokesmen for the operators, peace is near at hand but a wealth of red tape is still to be gone through with.

Although John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, maintains silence, he may possibly force the operators into an "about surrender" on all points, similar to that at Cleveland with the bituminous operators.

Against this possibility is the persistent rumor that the mine workers have accepted the so-called "Pepper proposal" laid before them in Washington, which is a compromise measure. It is known that one of the reasons for leniency on the part of the victorious miners, is the fact that in the hard coal fields there were no evictions of miners' families from company-owned houses.

What Injunction Bans.

The injunction granted Attorney General Daugherty enjoins railroad men all over the country from:

Arguing with any one who announces that he intends to go to work for a railroad.

Parading.

Holding public mass meetings to show how strong the striking organizations are.

Writing to a friend, advising him to leave railroad employment.

Throwing stones at freight or passenger cars or locomotives.

Calling railroad employees names (this probably includes the term "scab").

Walking down a railroad track or right of way.

Interfering with, hindering or obstructing in any manner the agents, servants or employees of the railroads in the performance of their duty.

Interfering with, obstructing or hindering the inspection, repair, operation or use of trains, locomotives, cars and other railroad equipment.

Preventing or attempting to prevent, persons from entering railroad employment or from continuing in railroad employment.

Loitering in the vicinity of any railroad station, round house, switch, tower, water tank, railroad yards, or other work place.

Agreeing with other union members to hinder workers from going to work.

Telling a worker that it is unsafe for him to remain in railroad employment.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Federal Judge James A. Wilkerson today granted a blanket injunction against the striking shopmen asked for by Attorney General Daugherty on complaint of the United States of America. The shopmen and their leaders are prohibited in any way interfering with the operation of the railroads or their employees.

The hearing to make the order permanent was set for September 11.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—In a sensational dramatic move that came with startling suddenness, the United States government today threw down the gauntlet to the 400,000 striking shopmen and their leaders by procuring a blanket injunction against their interference in any way whatsoever with the operation of the railroads.

Acting on behalf of the federal government, Attorney General Daugherty appeared before Federal Judge James A. Wilkerson and personally made application for the most drastic act the United States government has yet taken to overcome the industrial crisis that confronts the nation.

The request from the attorney general is the most sensational step taken by the government in labor troubles, rivaling even the sensational injunction against the United Mine Workers of America in the 1919 coal strike.

The result of such a wholesale injunction which virtually prohibits the striking shopmen and their leaders from doing anything in connection with the strike, is expected to be of far-reaching consequences.

Passages in the injunction granted are so stringent as to allow the interpretation of forbidding meetings of even the leaders in connection with the strike activities.

The petition, which contains fifty closely typed pages, sets forth that on July 1, 400,000 men of the Federated Shopcrafts laid down their tools and "combined and conspired" to leave their posts of employment in refusal of awards made by the United States Railroad Labor Board, which the petition points out is an organization authorized by federal statute—the Transportation Act.

The petition alleges that in thus overriding the Labor Board, the Federated Shopcraft workers "showed contempt for the board, and through the board, for the government of the United States."

The petition seeks an injunction restraining the defendants named from interfering, obstructing or in any way hindering the operation of railroads.

It was said by those closely in touch with the situation that any violation of such an injunction, issued by a federal court at the request of the attorney general himself, probably would mean the employment, if necessary, of the whole of the standing army of the United States to enforce the court's edicts.

Attorney General Daugherty arrived in Chicago secretly, prepared to make this, the most sensational move yet made by the United States government in the railroad crisis. He appeared before Federal Judge

Wilkerson and filed a blanket petition for an injunction restraining all railroad employees throughout the country from interfering with the operation of any railroad throughout the country.

The action was said to be paralleled as a sensation only by the action taken by the government in the case of Eugene V. Debs, several years ago.

Daugherty was accompanied by Blackburn Estorline, assistant United States attorney general in charge of railroad strike affairs.

Immediately upon his arrival in Chicago, the attorney general and Estorline, went to the Blackstone Hotel where they were met by District Attorney Charles F. Kline. The three immediately went into a secret conference.

The following were made defendants in the petition.

Railway employees' department of the American Federation of Labor, B. M. Jewell, head of the striking shopcrafts; J. F. McGrath, vice president, and John Scott, secretary-treasurer. International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers, James W. Cline, president. International Alliance of Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers, J. J. Hynes, president; International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders and Helpers of America, J. A. Franklin, president; Brotherhood of Railway Car Men of America, Martin F. Ryan, president; International Association of Machinists, William M. Johnson, president; B. C. Davidson, grand secretary-treasurer; International Association of Electrical Workers, James P. Noonan, president; Atlanta, Tennessee & Northern System Federation, Number 132, J. M. Key, president and Robert A. Seabury, and.

One hundred and nineteen other system federations, together with their presidents and secretaries.

This is what the bill asks:

First: That each defendant and their attorneys, servants, agents, associates, members, employees and all persons asking aid of or in conjunction with them, be enjoined and restrained, primarily, until final hearing hereon and perpetually thereafter, from the following:

(a) In any manner interfering with, hindering or obstructing said railway companies or any of them, their agents, servants or employees, in the operation of their respective railroads and systems of transportation or the performance of their public duties and obligations in the transportation of passengers and property in interstate commerce and the carriage of the mail and from in any manner interfering with, hindering, obstructing, or to injure, interfere, hinder or annoy, an employee of said railroad companies or any of them in connection with their said employment or at any time or place by displays or force or numbers, the making of intimidations, acts of violence, opprobrious epithets, jeers, suggestions of danger, taunts, entreaties or other unlawful acts or conduct toward any employees or officers of said railroad companies or any of them or towards persons desirous of or contemplating entering into such employment; engaged in the inspection, repair, operation and use of trains, locomotives, cars and other equipment of said railroad companies, or any of them and from preventing or attempting to prevent any person or persons from freely entering into or continuing in the employment of said railway companies or any of them for the inspection and repairing of locomotives and cars or otherwise in any manner combining, confederating, agreeing and arranging with each other or with any person or persons, organizations or associations to hinder or interfere with or hinder said railway companies or any of them in the conduct of their lawful business of transportation of passengers and property in interstate commerce and the carriage of mail; or being unnecessarily in the vicinity of the points and places of ingress or egress of the employees of said railroad companies to and from such premises in connection with their said employment; or aiding, abetting, directing or encouraging any person or persons, organizations, or association, by letter, telegram, telephone, word of mouth or otherwise, to do any of the acts aforesaid; trespassing, entering or going upon the premises of the said railway companies or any of them to do any of the acts aforesaid.

MRS. ESTABROOK'S MOTION DENIED

Judge Nichols Permits Jury's Verdict For Crane Company To Stand—Mrs. Estabrook Has Sued For $30,000 Damages Sustained Through Burns From Gas Heater.

Judge Nichols has denied the motion made by Robert Fisher of Saratoga county, the counsel for Mrs. Estabrook of this city, to set aside the verdict in favor of the William M. Crane Company of New York in the action brought by her against that company, to recover $30,000 because of burns she sustained in the use of a Vulcan gas heater made by that company, and sold to her by the Kingston Gas and Electric Company as the distributing agent of the Crane Company.

The case was tried before Judge Nichols and a jury at the May term of the Supreme Court in this city, the trial occupying three days. The evidence showed that Mrs. Estabrook, who is the daughter of the late Mayor Phinney, and the sister of Sergeant Phinney of the Kingston police force, bought from the Kingston Gas and Electric Company a Vulcan gas heater made as before stated by the Crane Company, the latter company being one of the largest manufacturers of gas burning appliances in the United States. The heater was installed in her bath room at 123 Henry street. While preparing to take a bath on the 12th of February, 1921, and standing between the heater and a dressing case, while stooping over to remove some lingerie from a drawer in the dresser, her clothing took fire, she was so severely burned that she was confined to the Kingston City Hospital for over two months, suffered great pain, and claims to be unable to follow her vocation which is that of a practical nurse.

The Crane Company defended upon the ground that the heater was not defective, that Mrs. Estabrook after lighting it stepped back so close to it that the light clothing she wore at the time, of necessity took fire. The measurements made between the heater and the dresser showed that the distance was about three feet. On the trial the most noted experts upon gas heating appliances in New York and New Jersey were called upon to testify. The expert called by Mrs. Estabrook's counsel testified that the heater was defective in that the guards against fire were insufficient, and that the heater was constructed upon improper principles. Those called by the Crane Company on the other hand testified that the heater was constructed upon the best scientific principles for gas consumption, and that it was in all respects a safe appliance to use under the circumstances under which it was used. Also it was proven that the Crane Company had manufactured and sold many thousands of the Vulcan heaters during the five years preceding Mrs. Estabrook's injury, and never had received a complaint relative to any of them.

The jury by the consent of both parties were taken by Sheriff Kolts to Mrs. Estabrook's apartment where the heater was set up and lighted, and they saw it in full operation under the same circumstances as when Mrs. Estabrook was burned. The jury returned a verdict in favor of the Crane Company, Robert Fisher and Roscoe Irwin, who represented Mrs. Estabrook, applied to Judge Nichols to set aside the verdict upon the ground of errors committed by the judge in the admission of evidence of experts as to the safe character of the heater over their objection. The motion was opposed by Judge Clearwater who was counsel for the Crane Company with Van Doren, Conklin, McNevin and McClintock.

Judge Nichols, as above stated, has just handed down his decision denying the motion, and permitting the verdict for the Crane Company to stand.

And Nothing Less Worthy. There is nothing lighter than rain praise.—William Drummond.

HAS "COME BACK"

Man of Fifty Need No Longer
Remain on the Shelf.

Formerly Classed as Elderly, He Now
Makes Strong Appeal to Girl on Life's Threshold.

An attractive personality in the eyes of the girl of twenty is the Man of Fifty. It is the attraction of the opposite.

To a girl who is just on the threshold of life, the years of the Man of Fifty make a strong appeal, writes a Girl of Twenty in the Continental Edition of the London Mail. She lacks the experience and knowledge of the world, and though she may not admit it she realizes it. His presence acts as an anodyne. For a time she has done with youth and her interests are centered in those older than herself. It is often only a passing phase, but nevertheless it is a very real one.

Miss Twenty is flattered that a man many years her senior should find pleasure in her society. For the attraction is mutual.

The Man of Fifty is allured by the unsophisticated outlook of a young girl. He is amused and interested and also, maybe, in her way, flattered. It has always been thus, and it is natural that it should be so. But never has the Man of Fifty been appreciated as he is today.

Conditions have changed and the Man of Fifty has changed—or rather, he has adapted himself to changed conditions. Incidentally, it has been the making of him.

In those dim days before the war, and the annihilation of so many younger men, there was no place for the Man of Fifty. He was even "too old at forty," and at fifty he was relegated to his armchair.

Things have changed since then. There are many gaps to fill and the Man of Fifty is still filling them—not only in work, but also in play.

In so doing he is recovering his youth, which he is in danger of losing. One has only to take a look at the modern ballroom to confirm this. There are many iron-gray heads there. They tell tales although the feet do not give anything away. These fox-trots were not learned 20 years ago—they have been learned today and learned well.

Thus in many ways Mr. Fifty meets Miss Twenty on equal terms. He is not only guide, philosopher and friend, but also "pal."

He is still active enough to enjoy games with her—lawn tennis and golf are not too strenuous for him. They might be so to a woman of his own age—that is where the girl scores.

On the other hand, a girl of twenty is, in many ways, years older than a boy of the same age. "He is still a boy," is a common phrase that is where the man of fifty scores.

Thus the Man of Fifty is not always painted and is not he is not always a girl and is not a place. He has not quite forgotten all about romance and sometimes he is very romantic. Then he married Miss Twenty. Is not that the essence of romance?

Divides Money to Get Home.

The oil-stock salesman told of his vacation scheme the other day. "It is one he used several years. Its advantage is that you always get home without having to draw a check or telegraph headquarters for funds."

"It's like this," he said. "During the year I put aside something each week toward my vacation fund. Then when the time to go comes I count it up and divide it into two even rolls. One my wife sees into the lining of the coat I am going to wear. The other I put into my right hand trousers pocket. Then we start out."

"We go in one direction until the roll in the right hand trousers pocket is gone. Then the roll in my lining is ripped out and we start back. Sometimes we have to figure pretty close, but we always get back all right."

New York Sun.

Dig Their Own Graves.

The efficiency of the operations of at least one state department is attested in a statement on a government postal card received by Frank N. Wallace, state entomologist. Usually, says Mr. Wallace, the successful result of recommendations of his division of the state conservation department can be determined only by the silence of the inquirers, but not so with a citizen from Lyons, Ind.

The postal card reads:

"Will report as you requested on the results of your prescription to kill oriental roaches. I have used it freely for a few nights, and zip! I can't find a bug now to bait my fish hook. The strange part is that I find no trace of the dead ones. I guess they dig their own graves, too."—In Indianapolis News.

To Fold the Laundry.

A Canadian inventor claims to have solved one of the greatest problems of the age by producing a shirt cuff which presents four wearing surfaces. It is detachable, reversible and interchangeable. The economical man who wishes to wear a shirt two days will thus be able to present a perfectly clean cuff twice a day. If he wishes to have his cuffs match his necktie and his hose in color he will be able to do so with ease. The principal trouble with this announcement is that it is too good to be true. If the invention is all that is claimed for it, some day will be found to bluff mankind from taking full advantage of it.—Lincoln Journal.

Indians in Confederate Army.

In the latter part of 1861 the Cherokee nation entered into a treaty of alliance with the Confederate states and agreed to furnish a regiment of troops for the Confederate military service. The regiment became demoralized and practically ceased to exist soon after the battle of Pea Ridge, Ark., in 1862.

KINGSTON, N. Y., SEPT. 1, 1922.

The American farmer has never gone on strike, even when he had to work for nothing, and he is not likely to go into a political organization dominated by men who go on strike when their incomes, on an average, are more than the farmers, on an average, ever hoped to receive.

Judging by the way the Democratic press is jumping on the "wool growers of the senate," they must think that if a man is a wool grower he thereby becomes disqualified for a seat in a legislative body. But if a wool grower is disqualified because of his occupation, why not also a wheat grower, a cotton grower, a corn grower, a cattle grower or an orchardist? The Democrats are driving all kinds of producers away from their ranks.

A prominent Democratic paper remarks that "the fact that western farmers are not rushing their wheat to market this summer indicates that they are in stronger financial position than generally supposed." Undoubtedly, and they are in better financial condition because of the changed policies of the government under a Republican administration. The Democratic regime seemed to do everything possible to embarrass the farmer.

In one sense, Hancock was right in declaring that the tariff is a local issue. It is local in the sense that the congressman whose district has products that need protection will vote for protection on such products, even if he votes for free trade on everything else. But fundamentally the statement is not true. Whether the United States should or should not maintain a protective tariff is a national issue, for the welfare of the country as a whole is affected by the decision of that question. If the factories are closed because of heavy importations, the agricultural producers will have no profitable market for their commodities. On the other hand, if the agricultural producers are not prosperous, the manufacturers will have a poor market for their output. To a broad minded statesman, the tariff is a national issue.

"WHITE COAL"

The coal deadlock and threatening prospects for the winter have turned the thought of many toward the "mines of white coal" which are above ground and are continually renewed from the mist-buckets of the skies. So far only about 20 per cent of the power capacity of the "white coal mines" is being employed, and this lack of development is chiefly the result of the fact that there is still abundance of black coal for generations to come. It is estimated that there are still 20 billion tons of anthracite and 1,500 billion tons of bituminous coal under American ground. But taking it out and selling it at a fair price, without hold-ups of a suffering public due to selfish strife between operators and miners—this is the difficulty. Moreover, eminent geologists and conservationists hold that our responsibility to future generations demands that we reduce the consumption of our stored black coal to "our absolute necessities and thus prolong its life to the utmost."

White coal can not wholly take the place of black, but can supplement it to a vast extent, and, as is pointed out in an article in the current Review of Reviews, it can put an end to the complete predominance of black coal in industry—a consummation greatly to be desired, both for the sake of the conservation of the stores of black coal for posterity and for the sake of a harried public periodically the victim of strikers, strife and hold-ups such as the present. The continuing development of the "mines of white coal" may be well described as a truly patriotic work.

WHY BRITAIN BORROWED.

Great Britain was the banker of her allies in the World War both before and after the United States participated in that war. This is not new information, but in connection with the matter of the British debt to us it is of general interest to find the fact restated that Great Britain borrowed from the United States only after vast lending to her allies and in order to be able to lend more.

It is again positively stated that her loans to her allies were in excess of what she borrowed from the United States. The extra financial burden assumed by the British in order to bring success to the common cause was undoubtedly very great.

In this connection a cable dispatch quotes the London Daily Chronicle as saying: "It is true that America's advances to us were for the purpose of buying munitions and food in the United States, but it is equally true that we would not have needed to borrow a penny from America if we had not had to finance our allies at the same time. Indeed, we offered early in 1918 to pay for everything we purchased in America if the United States would relieve us of this heavy burden of financing the allies. Washington refused, however, to assume the burden and we had to go on incurring a debt that we could otherwise have paid. What we got from America was far more than counter-balanced by what we had to advance to our other partners in the common struggle. Even after America's entry into the war we advanced 897,000,000 pounds sterling to our allies, though in the same period America advanced to us only 875,000,000 pounds. Of course over the whole period of the war the disproportion is even greater." And now, it may be added, Great Britain is under a strain to repay the United States largely because she has not been repaid the vast sums loaned to her largely bankrupt allies.

3. We had a lot of lovely cedar waxwings around our trees for a while, and now they are gone. Have they migrated this early?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. What is our largest owl? Smallest?

The great gray owl is tallest, measuring 30 inches in large specimens. Its home is in the far north, but it comes in winter to the most northern border of the U. S. It has no ear tufts. The smallest is the elf owl, of South Texas and South California, from 5 1/2 to 6 1/2 inches tall. Another small owl is the pygmy, living in well-treed regions of western North America, but not close to the Pacific coast. The pygmy flies and feeds by day, the elf by night.

2. How can anything as tiny as a fly's foot pick up disease germs?

The germs are microscopically small, and find easy lodgment on the foot, which has two sticky pads on it to give it a foothold; and each pad covered with hair to hold the sticky fluid. Microscopes have shown from 500 to 1,000,000 germs on a single fly.

3. Is grapefruit a natural fruit, or a hybrid?

A natural species, though of course the present day cultivated form is somewhat modified from the original citrus tree introduced from the Orient to the West Indies by a Captain Chaddock. Botanic name, Citrus decumana. The pear-shaped variety used to be called shaddock; and the more spherical fruit pomelo. "Grapefruit" is a made-up name recalling the close clustering of the fruit on the branches.

We had a great deal of rain for a few days, which was not interesting, yet the people went all the same.

The Elmo seems full all the time. There are so many tourists who stop there and they are pleased with everything there.

Mrs. Gibson and children from Albany, who have spent the larger part of the summer at their camp near the Whitley residence, will soon leave here as the children will very soon enter school.

We hope we may have favorable weather this Friday evening for the freemen's block dance. As this is just before Labor Day there will be a number of people in town, so do your duty.

Martin and Cluett Schantz were on a fishing expedition for the week end at Sheephead Bay. They are very fond of that sport. Although we have not heard of the result of the trip, but we presume they caught a goodly number of the funny tribe.

Mr. and Mrs. James Nickerson have had recent guests from Clintondale.

Mrs. C. E. Baldwin is in Good Ground, Long Island, for a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Schoonmaker and Allen Atkins are now having some recreation they are taking in pleasures by a fine auto trip.

The garter plant here opened up for business on Tuesday morning. They gave their people two weeks vacation. They employ a goodly number of people and it is a good thing.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schamerhorn and daughter will leave soon

Do not forget Auxiliary Club meeting this Friday at 2:30 in the M. E. Church parlor. We hope to see large numbers present and plenty of business, also fine social time.

Mrs. D. W. Kurtz, Miss Fannie Kuntz and Miss Blanch Constable have returned home after spending a week in New York, Brooklyn, Coney Island and other resorts. They certainly had a grand time.

D. of A. will hold their regular meeting Wednesday evening, September 6. The councilor wishes all to be present. Now vacation time is about wound up and all want to get to business. The refreshment committee will give all some good things to eat and you will have a social that you will enjoy.

ONE OF INDIA'S RHODE ISLANDS

Do You Happen to Know Where and What is Rajppla?

RULER VISITS UNITED STATES

Formal Call on President Harding Recently of the Maharana of Rajppla Arouses Interest in This Little Known Section of India—Something About the Government of India and Its Maharana and Maharaja—Latter Real Ruler.

Is a maharana today a "comic opera ruler" or an illustrious eastern potentate? And where and what is Rajppla?

These problems have arisen since an Indian ruler, the Maharana of Rajppla paid a formal call on President Harding one day recently. Something of the country of this ruler and of Maharana and Maharaja in general is told in a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

Like German Principality. "If Rajppla is not as familiar a name in America as Bengal or the Punjab or even as Hyderabad or Mysore," says the bulletin, "there is a reason. There are some 700 native states in India, and Rajppla happens to be among the smallest. At the same time it is attached to one of the larger native states, Baroda, as a tribute payer. Well-informed foreigners are expected to know of the existence of New York and Pennsylvania as component parts of the United States, but if a number of their counties were semi-independent and the situation were paralleled by most of the other states, the outsider could hardly be expected to know the subdivisions even though the rulers were given the full title of 'Governor'.

"Rajppla is in northwestern India about 200 miles north of the city of Bombay, and is about midway in size between Rhode Island and Delaware. In this territory the maharana rules over something less than 125,000 subjects. Very roughly the status of his domain might be compared to that of some of the smaller German principalities before the World war, such, for example as Saxe-Weimar, which is approximately the same size and has a little over twice the population.

"Though the maharana of Rajppla rules over a relatively small area and over a population equal only to that of the city of New Bedford, Mass., and though he pays several thousand dollars 'tribute' to a larger state, he is none the less a real potentate, with a family which has reigned since 1470. In common with many of the hundreds of rulers of native states he is addressed as 'His Highness' under British regulations and is saluted with 11 guns.

"The Rajppla's 'army' numbers 171 men, but this does not measure his importance. Hardly any of the Indian princes can muster more than a corporal's guard; for the government of India takes care of all relations outside their borders, and the only function of their 'armies' is to stand guard about the palaces and furnish atmosphere on state occasions.

Maharajas Real Rulers. "The appearance of an Indian prince in the West brings up the little understood and very complicated question of how the government of India is constituted. The whole peninsula is commonly looked upon as a British 'possession'. But the British govern directly only the portion known as British India. The 700-odd native states whose territory covers about one-third the area of India, are only under the protection and suzerainty of the government of India, headed by the viceroy, the earl of Reading.

"Within their own domains most of the princes are almost absolute rulers, though there is usually a British agent resident at their capitals who advises with them from time to time. Many of the rulers have unrestricted power of life and death over their subjects, and in the case of practically all of them, all government proclamations and writs run in their names. British police may not operate within the states and fugitives from British justice must be extradited—as though the states were foreign governments.

"The most common title of Indian royal rulers is maharaja. A 'Raja' is a ruler or king, and 'Maha Raja' means 'Great King.' Maharana is merely a variant form used in some of the states."

CANNOT USE THE MAILS

"Subject to Inspection" Plan Ordered Stopped.

The Post Office department put an end to the practice of certain firms in advertising that their merchandise might be sent through the mails subject to inspection by purchaser before acceptance and payment of charges. All postmasters were instructed to advise the department of such firms or individuals giving this guarantee and to refuse to accept merchandise mailed under such conditions.

ASTORS BEATEN ON HOME GROUNDS

Head Of Colonial Baiting Order
Makes Two Runs Off Forsythe
While Harper Holds Opponents
Down To One.

"Was that the last game them two teams played that year, grandp?" asked the youngster after he had finished reading the box score the old man had given him.

"Well, no, it wasn't," answered the old man as he kept looking through some more Rhinebeck papers of that period. "Fact is, they played three or four more games that year, but that is the one I like to think about best."

"Seems to me the next game was played over here in Rhinebeck. That's right, it was, here's the paper telling all about it. Fine game it was too, as I remember, all except one thing. Our feller lost that game, 2 to 1."

"We had the county fair over here that time and had a ball game every day. Our feller only played one of the games though, and consarn it, we had to lose that one."

"Them Colonials came over here that day with a mighty fine ball club. Had that same feller Harper I was tellin' you about in the box, and that feller did pitch fine ball that day. Held our lads down to four hits and we could only make one run. Got some nice support from the other players too. Once or twice our feller got on the bases and we thought we might be able to squeeze over a run, but them Kingston lads always stopped us."

"I remember Rube Forsythe did the pitchin' for us that day too, and you know I told you Rube was pitchin' great ball about that time. Rube didn't pitch bad that day, not by a jugful, but that feller Harper was just a bit better than he was."

"I went down to the fair that day, but I didn't care much about the fair. I wanted to see the ball game, and I guess quite a few others did too. I remember so many people from Kingston came over that they couldn't get across on the ferry, and some of 'em had to go up Tivoli way or down to Poughkeepsie and then up so as to get here for the game."

"Well, them fellers from Kingston scored a run in the first inning. Lad named Shay for them sent one down to our shortstop, but our man made a boot and the Kingston man was safe. Next feller made a bunt and sent the runner down to second. Dahn, that's the man, I remember him now, used to play with one of the Poughkeepsie teams, hit the ball out to left field and Kingston had a run."

"We didn't get a chance to do much shoutin' until the third inning, and then our feller tied it up. Forsythe wasn't much of a hitter, but he hit one out to right field in that inning and made first base. Then Harper let him go down to second when he made a wild pitch. Astors had a center fielder then named McDonald. He wasn't afraid of no big league pitcher and cracked the ball to center field and Forsythe came home."

"Well, with the score tied we figured we had a chance of winnin', but them Colonials got another run in the fifth and we never caught up. Way they scored their run was like this: That same feller Shay who started it off for them in the first inning got a safe hit to left field with nobody out, and the next lad sacrificed him down again. Then that feller Dahn, consarn him, cracked another hit to left field and them Colonials had another run. Seems to me that man Dahn had three hits that day, but lucky thing for us there wasn't nobody on the bases when he made the third one and nobody else scored. Good player he was, mighty good player."

"There wasn't nothin' to it after that run came over. Our feller couldn't do nothin' with that big league pitcher after the third inning. Seems to me we didn't get a hit from that inning right on up until the eighth and then it didn't do us no good."

"Thought we had a chance to tie it up in the last inning, but it was only a thought. First feller up for us cracked out a single and we all started to yell, but it didn't last long. Next man forced him at second base, but we still had a man with only one down. But that Colonials' first baseman, man named Coyle and a good man too, made two nice plays on the next two batters and that's all there was to it."

"Here son, read this box score while I take a nap."

CARNIVAL OWNER TELLS OF HELEN

Lapp Says Brothead Girl Came to His Show Seeking Man Friend Who Wasn't There—He Had Agent Secure Hotel Room for Her. Rather Than Let Her Sleep on Merry-go-round.

Mr. Lapp, owner of the American Exposition Shows, whose home is in Ellenville, was in Kingston Thursday, with his agent and they stopped at the court house and called on Under Sheriff Tunis Haulenbeek and told of what they knew about Helen Brothead, aged 17, disappeared from her home last week, Friday and was found on Monday by Sheriff Pierce of Greene county at the Smith House, Catskill. He and state troopers turned her over to her mother and the story was that she had been abducted, or kidnapped by a man employed by Mr. Lapp's carnival company.

The Brothead girl's explanation of her disappearance from Kingston was that someone touched her on the shoulder as she came out of Lapp's Theatre on Crown street, that she went into a trance and from then on knew nothing until she was in Catskill.

From what Mr. Lapp tells a different aspect is shown in the case. His story told in the sheriff's office was that on last Saturday night a young woman inquired of an employee of the carnival where the California Shows were showing, and the one asked passed the inquiry up to Mr. Lapp who was in his office and he sent a word that the California Shows were at Plattsburg. The young woman then asked for a job with the carnival and Mr. Lapp was sent for and he told her that he knew of no job just then. She stated she had been a ticket seller with the California Shows for the merry-go-round and that the man running it was her friend and that he had her clothes and baggage. She hung around the carnival grounds all evening taking several rides on the merry-go-round. Later she asked if she could stay all night on the merry-go-round and was told by Mr. Lapp and the agent that she could not sleep there by any means. Finally she said she had no money to get a room in a hotel and suspecting she was a runaway because of her intelligence and the manner she was clothed Mr. Lapp felt sorry for her and told the agent to see that she got a room for the night at the Smith House where he and Mrs. Lapp were stopping and also the principal people of the shows. He told Miss Brothead that perhaps Mrs. Lapp might think of some position she could place her and if so she had a place to stop with some private family where it was not so expensive to stay.

The agent took her to the Smith House where she gave her name as Gertrude Broderick and when asked where her home was she said it was wherever she hung up her clothes. After being registered she stated she was hungry and the agent for the shows says he ordered some sandwiches, coffee and other things to eat and had them charged to his room. Mr. Lapp states that on Sunday morning he went away in his automobile to Columbia county points and other places to see about getting dates for the carnival, and the advance agent says that he was ill on Sunday and stayed in bed until after 4 o'clock and in fact forgot all about the girl, although he says he too suspected she was a runaway.

Monday Mr. Lapp and the agent went away in their auto, visiting a number of places, seeking locations for the carnival and did not get back until Wednesday. Then they learned of the finding of the girl at the Smith House and of her story of being kidnapped and of having been in a

FARM BUREAU DAY AT FAIR

Ithaca, Sept. 1.—Working in cooperation with the state fair commission, officials of the New York State Farm Bureau Federation have completed arrangements for what promises to be the best and most attractive Home and Farm Bureau day ever held at the state fair, Secretary Underwood announced today. Farm and Home Bureau day this year will come on Tuesday, September 12.

Congressman Sydney Anderson of Minnesota, chairman of the joint commission of agricultural inquiry who will be the chief speaker, will inspect the exhibits and camps of farm boy and girl project workers in the afternoon he will lead a parade of the boys and girls to the speaker's stand in Empire court and from there will address members.

Mr. Anderson's speech will undoubtedly be the most interesting at the entire fair, Secretary Underwood believes. For two years he has devoted a majority of his time to studying agricultural marketing and production problems as chairman of the commission of inquiry and as a result probably knows more of what the farmer needs than any other statesman in the country.

Mr. Anderson will be introduced by S. L. Strivings of Castile, president of the federation. An extensive program has also been arranged by the State Home Bureau Federation.

trance. They at once went to Sheriff Pierce they said and told their stories which was as above stated and which they told in the sheriff's office here. This they said is all they knew of the girl. They gave as their opinion that the story she tells of being kidnapped is "bunk," and that probably she had become friendly with the merry-go-round man of the California Shows while it was in Kingston during the week of August 14, and had gone to Catskill to meet him thinking that the California Shows were there instead of the American Exposition Shows. Finding she was mistaken and stranded she had asked for a job, and by her actions and talk she gave no evidence of being bewildered.

The Catskill Mail of Wednesday prints the following in regard to the case. "The case is now in the hands of the state police, and they have obtained the name of the man who was with Miss Brothead and brought her to the Smith House and registered her name slightly altered. It is Edward Holcomb, as it is stated he left town and has not been heard of since. He was not a resident here. It is also said that all he left at the hotel consisted of a pair of worn trousers hanging on the door of his room and a package of collars that had been returned from a laundry. He also left an automobile in town."

Hint to Smokers.

A French doctor declares that all deleterious effects of tobacco smoking may be prevented by adding to the tobacco the stigmas of the little plant known as "goldfoot." The only change noticeable in the tobacco, which retains its aroma perfectly, is that it seems to acquire some resemblance to Oriental tobacco.

NEW 'PHONE STOCK IS BEING ISSUED

Thirty-seven thousand stock certificates are being forwarded this week by registered mail by the treasurer's department of the New York Telephone Co. at 15 Day street, New York, to purchasers of the company's 6 1/2 per cent cumulative preferred stock who have paid for their stock in full.

The certificates are going to telephone users in the company's territory in New York state and New Jersey and cover shares of a par value of approximately $12,000,000. Three thousand additional certificates will go out within the near future, mailing being delayed because of checking up names, addressing and other details.

When all stock certificates for shares of the $35,000,000 issue have been delivered, the New York Telephone Company probably will have a larger number of shareholders of relatively small individual investment as any corporation in the country.

The detailed work in connection with the offer and distribution of the stock has been very extensive and has necessitated night and day work in the departments involved. The treasurer's office normally numbering 70 have been aided at various times by workers from other departments and at these periods as many as 150 people have been on the job. Judging by questions received by the treasurer's department, many of the stockholders are comparatively newcomers in the investment field and of moderate means. This bears out the thought generally expressed in financial circles that the New York Telephone Company through the offer of its stock has reached men and women who hitherto have not invested either in stock and bonds.

Barbarous Treatment of Prisoners. Formerly, all prisoners were "ironed," even in their cells, and the irons used were of enormous weight. Up to the eighteenth century great weights like round shot were attached to the legions, so that the wearer could not walk unless he picked up the weights and carried them.

TRIED TO DYNAMITE RAILWAY BRIDGE

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Cleveland, O., Sept. 1.—A plot to dynamite the Cayahoga river bridge on the Belt Line Railroad, was frustrated early today when four men were discovered digging a hole near one of the main supports of the bridge. When surprised in their activities, the men opened fire and routed the two guards, then escaped by jumping into the river and swimming to the shore and driving away in a waiting automobile. Many shots were fired but none were effective. Traffic across the bridge has been suspended. All bridges in the city are now under guard.

While the plates were being developed it was discovered that the negative had become covered with dark, blotchy and spots over the face. As the customer had a very beautiful complexion the photographer asked her for another sitting.

She did not reply, and it was discovered that she had contracted smallpox, and that the photographic plate had revealed the eruption while she was as yet unaware that Fogel's method was wrong. Actually with Fogel's method a special technique is required. Chromo-plates are used, and more com-

K. H. S. EXPECTS BIG ENROLLMENT

With the approach of the opening day of the high school, Principal Lewis is looking forward to one of the largest fall enrollments in the history of the school. It is not thought that the increase in tuition for outside students will affect materially the attendance of students from outside the city. About twenty-three students will be allowed to enter the high school this fall, on account of passing the special examination for students who were deficient in one subject this past week, who otherwise would not have been able to come in until the middle of the school year.

Cheetah Used for Hunting.
One of the few savage animals which, after being caught, can be made to serve man is the cheetah. If he is caught wild he can be taught to hunt for his master; but he cannot be made to do this if he has been born in captivity. Some princes in India keep cheetahs just as many men in England keep packs of hounds for hunting foxes. When it has been trained the cheetah is taken near to where are deer or antelope. At first its head is covered with a hood. When this is taken off the animal creeps away to where it sees the deer, and springing upon one, catches it for its master. It is like the leopard in appearance, having a spotted coat. It cannot climb trees.

Mind Needs Occasional Holiday.
Nothing clarifies your mental vision more quickly than withdrawing temporarily from contact with the details of your work. From a distance you lose sight of the small problems of the daily routine and view the structure of your work as a whole. There can be no stronger foundation for success than careful attention to detail, but nevertheless there is a further function—that of fitting the details together into one complete whole. Concentrate relentlessly on your work, but see to it that your mind has an occasional holiday. It is not rest we need so much as change, and unless you get that once in a while you are not apt to lose your mental poise.—Exchange.

Canadian City Has Indian Name.
Winnipeg is an Indian word meaning muddy water, a name applied to Lake Winnipeg which is turbid after a storm. The city occupies the site of the famous Fort Garry. The name, Fort Garry, is first found on the title page of a publication known as the North-West, which began to appear in February, 1866. Earlier issues of the publication were dated "Red River Settlement." The main entrance to Fort Garry has been preserved and stands a landmark in the history of Winnipeg.

What Did the Boss Say?
It is customary in our office to answer the telephone with a vigorous "wholesale department." One day as I was dictating an important letter and had just ended one paragraph preparatory to starting another the telephone rang noisily. I hurriedly picked it up and shouted crossly into the mouthpiece, "Paragraph!" The voice was that of the department boss.—Baltimore American.

Where Feudalism Survives

One of Bhutan's "Castles in the Air"—Tongsa Jong.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)
Though the feudalism of the Middle Ages has disappeared from the western world, it is in full flower in Bhutan, just over the northeastern border of India on the southern slope of the Himalayas. The main road to Lhasa, the capital of Tibet, and the route followed in recent attempts to scale Mt. Everest runs just along the western edge of this almost unknown country.

Ridge after ridge of the world's highest mountains run southward from the Himalayas, and over these gigantic ranges and valleys is spread Bhutan, an area about equal to that of West Virginia. Some of the Bhutanese peaks attain altitudes up to 24,000 and 25,000 feet. From this roof of the world flow great turbulent rivers which would prove a joy to non-technical lovers of nature, but almost a sorrow to engineers, for in them millions of potential horse power are running to waste. The nearest approach to power utilization is in the few Buddhist prayer-wheels set up beside some of these streams that prayers may be reeled off mechanically.

In contrast to the sky-piercing peaks, clad in eternal snow, are the deep valleys, and to the southward the low plains of Bhutan, where in the damp, over-powering heat grow dense jungles of palms, ferns and bamboos. Between the two extremes are magnificent grazing grounds in the higher plateaus, high pine forests, rhododendrons, magnolias, chestnuts and oaks.

In eastern Bhutan the hills are densely clothed with forests, but have practically no population, as the region is too fever-stricken to allow, or any one living there. These hills are, however, the haunt of almost every kind of wild animal—elephant, rhino, tiger, leopard, lion, mythical sambar cheetah, hog-deer, barking deer, etc. The river beds are full of runs leading to the various salt-licks which occur in the hills.

It is an ideal place for shooting, but not easy to follow game, owing to the extreme steepness of the sandstone cliffs. The elephant in its wild state can go over or down nearly anything, and the tuskier in escaping a hunting party of Europeans was found to have gone up a precipice 80 feet high at an angle very little short of perpendicular.

Mules Are Fed Raw Eggs.
All transportation in Bhutan is on the backs of animals, and a queer array of two and four-footed creatures it is, ranging from coolies at one end, and of the scale to pack-sheep at the other, and including elephants, mules, donkeys, ponies, yaks and oxen. Mules are the standard for use on the mountain trails, and the Bhutanese manage to keep them in good condition despite their strenuous employment. Whether their odd custom of feeding the mules a concentrated emergency ration of raw eggs has anything to do with the good condition of the pack animals is not clear; certainly there are few sights queerer than that of Bhutanese mule tenders, just before a strenuous climb, breaking eggs like an American soda-water vander, dumping them into a horn, and pouring them down the throats of the animals.

One of the most distinctive things about Bhutan is its architecture. Religion and war have been the chief factors in molding it. Most of the villages or towns are citadels or forts and monasteries combined. And they are truly "castles in the air"—huge piles usually perched on some dominating ridge or cliff brink, against the side of a seemingly unattainable precipice. One striking architectural feature is that all the walls have a distinct slope inward as they rise. The observer wonders where this form of architecture came from; whether it came from this remote and inaccessible region in the Himalayas through the Akkadians, Babylonians, Assyrians and Persians from Egypt; or whether the center from which the art spread was founded by a race which had its habitat somewhere in Asia.

Not many years ago Bhutan was the scene of seemingly unending wars and raids between factions of its turbulent hillmen. It was ruled jointly by a religious and lay ruler. Since 1907 it has become a kingdom and peace seems to have settled upon it. Many a jungle, hillside has given way to rice fields and tea gardens.

Bhutan's feudal system is very close to that of the Middle Ages.

Maternal Responsibility.
A friend of the family happened to be at the house when the baby cried, and watched Pauline interestedly, as she tried to quiet the infant.

"He's a nice little brother to have, isn't he?" she smiled.

"Pauline replied, 'O, he may be all right when he grows up, but I think he'll be an awful hard baby for me to raise.'"

LOSS BY STRIKES EQUALS WAR DEBT

Last Decade Exceeds Record of Previous 25 Years.

MANY MILLIONS ARE INVOLVED

Records of the Bureau of Labor show that in the ten-year period there have been approximately 24,000 industrial disturbances involving more than 18,000,000 men and women—most of strikes have centered in seven States.

In the decade ending at midnight on December 31 next it is estimated that the number of strikes and lockouts that disturbed industrial America for that period will have exceeded more than 28,000 or 1,000 more than took place in the quarter of a century from 1881 to 1906, inclusive. These industrial disturbances, which have meant suffering and hardship not only for the participants but also for the public, have involved millions of men and women. The loss in wages, if available, would total a staggering sum, and the price paid by industry, if it could be measured in dollars would approximate the war debt of a first-class power.

Statistics on file in the Department of Labor in Washington show that between January 1, 1918, and December 31, last, the number of strikes and lockouts was about 23,400 and by the end of the year the number will have passed 26,000. For the years under consideration the bureau of labor has a record by months, industries and localities. The records for the period of 1908 to 1912, inclusive, are not available. When it is necessary to compare present and past conditions the quarter of a century period of 1881 to 1906, inclusive, will be used, the official records for those 25 years being fairly complete.

In the 25 years prior to and including 1906 the total number of strikes and lockouts was 25,333 and the number of persons involved about 6,715,000. These totals lose significance when compared with the record of the last ten years, with a total which by the end of this year is expected to exceed 26,000. The number of persons involved probably will be in the neighborhood of 18,000,000.

In seven States.

Of the more than 23,000 strikes in the nine-year period that ended December 31, last, more than 14,000 were in seven States—New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Illinois, Ohio, New Jersey and Connecticut. Before the new year the total for these seven States will be well beyond the 15,000 mark.

More than 60 per cent of all the strikes of the last ten years have taken place in the States that lie north of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi, about 10 per cent of them in territory to the south of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi and the rest in the west.

The table that follows, which covers the 1914-1922 period, shows the number of strikes and a conservative estimate of the number of persons. The figures for 1922 are to a certain extent speculative, contingent on what happens in the five remaining months of the present year.

Years.	Number strikes.	Persons involved.
1915.	1,420	700,000
1916.	1,581	2,000,000
1917.	1,424	2,000,000
1918.	1,248	2,000,000
1919.	1,462	4,000,000
1920.	1,193	2,000,000
1921.	1,164	2,000,000
1922.	1,000	8,000,000
Totals.	15,596	18,200,000

A study of the official data justifies the conclusion that there were at least 100 strikes not on record in the nine-year period prior to January 1 last, which explains why the total for the decade is put down as in excess of 26,000 instead of as being less than at number.

"It should be explained," a bulletin of the bureau of labor states, "that to ascertain the number of persons involved in a small strike is difficult and large strikes it is impossible. The number varies from day to day."

The long and heavy rains in New England this year have resulted in a tremendous loss of bird life, according to State Ornithologist Edward H. Forbush of Massachusetts. The rains have been more severe "down East" than in Massachusetts and reports to Professor Forbush relate that in places in Maine at least two whole flocks of birds of chimney swallows have been taken from single long chimneys.

The catastrophe to the chimney swallows, or chimney swifts, was directly due to the heavy rains, which drove to the ground the insects on which the birds feed, causing the birds to starve to death. These birds catch their prey on the wing and cannot subsist otherwise.

A similar catastrophe occurred in that district in 1903, when there was an abundance of rain, together with cold weather.

Oddities in Maine State.

When the decision to make an Maine Bible was made, it was found that the Bibles, living in such a cold climate, had absolutely no words to convey the descriptions of warm climates, conditions of life, etc. In the Maine Bibles there is no word to express the English word "lamb," so much used in the Bible. This presents what was thought at first to be a serious difficulty, with the translators put on the spot of being the Bibles of the world which mean "lamb" as the nearest expression in their language of the spirit of the "Lamb." Similar expedients have been used throughout.

It is impossible to give anything approaching an accurate estimate unless the time books of every county affected in every part of the country were available.

Again, take the 1920 steel strike. The wage losses caused by that battle between capital and labor have been variously estimated at from less than $50,000,000 to $200,000,000. That was just one 1920 strike. There were six others involving upward of 100,000 persons. It is not difficult to imagine the size of the job necessary to accurately estimate the wage losses of that year and the same problem arises when the question of the losses of employers is under consideration.

Another interesting phase of the problem is that thousands of strikes are nonunion. In 1920, out of 2,000 strikes, 441 involved workers who were not members of trade unions. In 1921 others the union affiliation of the strikers was a matter still in doubt. In 1921 nonunion strikes probably accounted 300 of the total, and, it is the same story, and generally in proportion, for all the other years that are of record.

(New York Times.)

Grouping the cities New York heads the list with 2,100 for six years, or an average of 350 a year. There were 424 reported in 1917 and by a coincidence the number was the same in 1918. In 1919 the total reported was 368, in 1920 it was 370, in 1921 it was 315, and in 1922—this record is not yet complete—180.

Chicago follows New York, but the total for the six years is only 619, or an average of about 104 a year. In Philadelphia the total for this period was 409; Boston, 407; Cleveland, 287; St. Louis, 286; Newark, 212; Baltimore, 201; Cincinnati, 178; San Francisco, 170; Providence, 165; Detroit, 171; Seattle, 163; Pittsburgh, 160; Rochester, 155, and New Orleans, 143.

Cities in which the totals for the six-year period were less than 150 and more than 25 were Bridgeport, Denver, Jersey City, Holyoke, Lynn, Milwaukee, Paterson, Springfield, Mass.; Toledo, Trenton, Wilkes-Barre and Youngstown.

The largest number of strikes called during this period affected the building trades, more than 2,700 having been called by the building trades unions. The metal trades unions accounted for more than 2,600; the clothing industry labor organizations for 2,000; the miners for about 1,400; the textile unions for another 1,250; steam and electric transportation for more than 1,200, and strikes called by the paper manufacturing, tobacco, furniture, iron and steel workers and lumber unions were in all instances less than 500 and more than 100.

The reports of the Labor department for the month of July estimated that there were then approximately 1,500,000 men out of work as a result of the strike of railway shopmen, miners and textile workers.

MAN CLIPS OWN TONSILS

Doctor Operates on Himself Before a Mirror, Held by Nurse.

Men have been known to amputate their own legs. In times of dire emergency arms have been severed from their bodies by their owners. One Portland (Ore.) doctor is credited with having removed his own appendix. But it fell to the lot of Dr. Joseph A. Pettit to be the first surgeon of Portland to cut out his own tonsils.

Although Doctor Pettit refused the offer of an afternoon to make any comment on the operation, it was learned that it was performed in St. Vincent's hospital at noon. It was not because the doctor lacked faith in his surgical friends that he performed the operation himself, but because of a desire to see if the thing could be done.

With a nurse holding a looking glass before him, Doctor Pettit is said to have hesitated the nerves of the tonsils with a drug and then snared them out. During the entire operation, which consumed twenty minutes, he was forced to depend entirely upon the looking glass. His instruments were difficult to handle, in that he had to use them reversed from the usual position.

Doctor Pettit suffered no ill effects from the operation, and shortly afterward drove his automobile back to his office.

RAIN KILLS BIRDS

Impossible for Swallows to Exist Because of Lack of Insects.

The long and heavy rains in New England this year have resulted in a tremendous loss of bird life, according to State Ornithologist Edward H. Forbush of Massachusetts. The rains have been more severe "down East" than in Massachusetts and reports to Professor Forbush relate that in places in Maine at least two whole flocks of birds of chimney swallows have been taken from single long chimneys.

The catastrophe to the chimney swallows, or chimney swifts, was directly due to the heavy rains, which drove to the ground the insects on which the birds feed, causing the birds to starve to death. These birds catch their prey on the wing and cannot subsist otherwise.

A similar catastrophe occurred in that district in 1903, when there was an abundance of rain, together with cold weather.

LABOR DAY AT CROSSPATCH ANNEX

Neighbors Will Declare a Strike Against Work and Enjoy Barnyard Golf, Baseball, Automobile Parade, Dancing and Refreshments, Which Includes Crosspatch Punch.

Willow, Aug. 31.—Labor Day will be celebrated at Crosspatch Community Annex, Willow Valley, in a way that should make it a day of real enjoyment for many people.

At 11 o'clock in the morning, daylight savings time, the barnyard golf or horseshoe pitching contest will be held at the grounds of the Crosspatch Annex. "Pop" Short and his son 6t Mt. Tremper, Dan Dore and his partner of Gardiner, Messrs. Shackrow and Adams, New Paltz, Houghtaling and McKenzie, Port Ewen, and Davis and Churchman, Kerhonkson, have been invited, not to forget the Rotary and Kiwanis of Kingston. A cash prize will be given. Willow has some good horseshoe pitchers but they modestly refuse to give their names beforehand. "Play ball" is the magic slogan that gets the neighborhood of Willow really excited. Clarence Peters of Lake Hill will head the Willow payers. Roy Ford, Captain Cross, Walter Hoffman, Edward Ostrander and Preston Hoffman are also on the team. Roy du Val and the Mt. Tremper team are expected to give the Willow people an exciting contest.

John Martin has kindly given the use of his field for the ball game. It is just opposite the Community House and is in every way an ideal place for the game. The ball game will be called at 3 o'clock.

Just before the ball game, about 2:30, all the cars will be lined up for an automobile parade-around the Willow Valley, which is so picturesque and beautiful that it should be better known.

All visitors are asked to decorate their cars, if possible, and bring noise-making devices which will add to the general hilarity. Crosspatch Jazz Band will head the parade. Mrs. Cross has flags and "crickets" to supply those who desire to doll up just before they start. A prize will be given for the car with the prettiest decorations and if anybody will fix up a "clown" or masquerade car, Mrs. Cross will give a prize for that also.

The Community House will be open all day from 11 in the morning. No charge will be made for admission. Crosspatch punch, hot dogs and ice cream will be on sale, but it is suggested that parties bring a picnic lunch, as there is no place in the vicinity where a regular dinner can be had.

After the ball game the crowd will adjourn across the road to the pretty grounds of Crosspatch Annex and have a sort of free for all program of athletic sports, obstacle race, tug-of-war, bean bags, anything they like and a nice new dollar bill as the prize in each event. The young people may dance if they like after the ball game. In the evening there will be dancing, refreshments and some special entertainment.

"This will be a sort of neighborhood get-together celebration, where we all declare a strike against work for one day," says Mrs. Cross. "The roads to Willow are good and we expect our friends from all the country side to gather for a jolly good time."

"Labor Day is sometimes considered more of a city holiday, but it comes just at a convenient time when our farmers can well take a day off from hard work and we still have many city friends with us."

Careless Shampooing
 Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich creamy lather, which rings out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified coconut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

HUSKY'S CLOUT FOUND RABBIT

Clingson, Second Sacker For Gallupers, Won Game and Gladdened Heart of Little Shaver—Blink Biven Still in Dumps Over His Defeat by Busters.

"Say, Mister, have you seen my rabbit?" asked little Arthur Hilda out as he trotted by Blink Biven, the man with the marvel curve of the century, who stood on the village corner still moaning over his defeat at the hands of Captain Twin Gormley's Busters the preceding day.

"Now," growled Blink. "I got trouble enough of my own without looking for any dadblanked rabbit."

"What's the trouble?" asked Husky Clingson, escond sacker of the Gallupers, who had a warm spot in his heart for little shavers.

"My rabbit got out of the coop last night and I can't find him anywhere," blubbered little Arthur. "Never mind," advised Husky. "Maybe he'll come back home again," and watched the little chap hurry down the street still looking for his missing pet and stopping everyone he met to inquire if they had seen a white rabbit with pink eyes.

"Don't be grouchy," said Husky, turning to Blink. "For the best of them get their bumps, and you'll have a chance to stage a comeback later on."

"Hub," granted Blink, "but Roddy said he would not need me to toss them over this afternoon as he was going to give brother Zink a whirl."

"Well," said Clingson, "you can't expect to pitch them all. We other fellows got to do something to earn our salaries, and we can't be kept sitting on the bench all the season. What do you think a ball team is for anyway?"

"You don't need a ball team when I pitch," boasted Blink. "I notice Twin did not have any trouble in picking out one of your curve backs for a circuit clout," interrupted Clingson.

"That was an accident," mumbled Blink.

"That's what they all say," reported Clingson. He added, "Coming over to the ball field?"

"Nix," said Blink. "I am going back to the hotel and dope out how I lost that game."

"You for it," said Clingson, "but as for me, I am going to try and dope out how to win the game today."

The game that afternoon between the Busters and Gallupers was one of those kind you read about but seldom see. Zink Biven was being given a workout by Captain Roddy-boy and he was proving he had the goods. By using Zink the Gallupers had a chance to give the catcher, who had a sore thumb, a chance to get it in shape for the next game. Zink only had two curves, an out and an in, but when he tossed the out it had such a remarkable curve that the first baseman caught it while the inshoot was handled by the third sacker.

The Busters used every effort to solve the delivery of Zink, but his control was unexcelled, and inning after inning slid by without the Busters securing a safe hit. Equally effective was Captain Gormley, who was tossing them over for the Busters.

At the fatal ninth frame the Busters retired by the strike out route and then in trotted the Gallupers to try and stage one of the last inning rallies or which they were famous.

Clingson was the first man to face Gormley in that inning and he had not had a safe hit all afternoon. The first ball over looked tempting and Husky swung at it with such force that he turned completely around. As his hat met the ball it drove it directly in front of home plate but with such force that the ball shot into the ground for a depth of ten feet, and before the Busters could dig it out Clingson had trotted around the paths with the winning run.

The remarkable thing about the hit was the fact when they finally excavated the ball they also found little Arthur's white rabbit with the pink eyes which had burrowed a home just in front of the plate. And maybe the little shaver was not happy to get his pet back safe and unhurt. Anyway the little shaver was not any happier than the Gallupers in evening up the series.

IT GREW WITH THE AUTOMOBILE

Brown Auto Supply Co. Started When There Were 250 Cars in Ulster County—Now There Are About 11,000.

Lewis Brown delivered the vocational talk at Thursday's Kiwanis Club luncheon, dealing with the ups and downs of the Brown Auto Supply Company which has recently moved into its new building at the head of Broadway. The firm began business as L. and E. Brown May 1, 1912, at a time when there were but 250 automobiles in all of Ulster county. Now there are said to be 11,000. The stock of automobile supplies and equipment is now believed to be the largest in Ulster county and equal to any between New York and Albany. The firm is the agency for one make of car, the Elgin Six, and in price its thousands of articles range from coter pins worth a few cents per hundred to a $200 solid rubber truck tire or a garage heater selling at $392. The business entails an immense amount of attention to detail as the average motorist doesn't buy until he is in need and then he wants the article in a hurry.

Attendance prize was donated by Dr. Meinhardt, the younger, and won by Andrew Cook.

An invitation was received from Crosspatch Annex for the Kiwanis horseshoe pitchers to attend the tournament there Labor Day.

A large delegation will attend the district convention at Poughkeepsie Sept. 20-21. Lieutenant Governor Wood and U. S. Senator Calder will speak on Sept. 20, and there will be a sail to West Point the same day.

Mrs. Gordon delivered her annual address at this point and gave some expert information on the building of the district. According to the report rendered, Mrs. Gordon had attended conventions during the year held at Binghamton, Rochester and Boston. From each of these assemblies most excellent reports were rendered. Officers for the year were elected as follows: Bro. J. Francis Monroe of Newburgh, district secretary, Mrs. Fanny Wade, Kingston, treasurer. Program committee was appointed by the chair as follows: The Rev. Benjamin Judd, Ph. D., Miss Nesbit Foote of New York city, Mrs. Olivia Bostick of Poughkeepsie, Miss Mildred West of Yonkers, all to work in conjunction with the district superintendent. Reports of delegates showed 18 churches represented, one new society added during the year.

Many suggestions were offered and discussed, which led to the assurance of an excellent program for 1923, when the joint conference of the Sunday school, Christian Endeavor Society and Missionary Society will meet in Yonkers. At 8 o'clock Thursday evening the close of the convention was featured by one of the finest concerts ever held in the Franklin Street Church, the program being rendered by local and out of town talent. Owing to the lack of room, many were compelled to stand and others turned away, not being able to find seating in the church.

Make Your Shopping Worth While!

This Store

Is brimful of good merchandise and we believe the kind that most people want. Conserving money doesn't imply the necessity of buying flimsy, quick-to-wear-out materials merely because they cost little. The wise, far-sighted policy is always to buy only dependable, reputable goods—materials of known reliability which will give satisfactory length of service. It is such merchandise we have taken special care to secure, and to offer for sale—at unusually low margins of profit.
